Notes:
1. Chart height is scaled to generations, each half inch vertically represents one generation (original scale).
2. Arrows of colored dashed lines point to the ancestor, usually pointing up (toward an earlier generation), but occasionally down which can occur if the average age of mothers is less in the line with more generations from the common ancestor.
3. Arrows of smaller black dashed lines point to the other parent, pointed to by a colored dashed line, if applicable.
4. Both Ragnvald and his grandfather, Ragnar Lonbrok, have the same set of maternal ancestors (see arrow from Gandolf to Affaier), probably from confusion of their names, by me perhaps, more likely by my sources.
5. Grey represents mythological genealogy of the gods
6. Data from "Simnocks, Royals, Vikings, Romans, and Gods" database maintained by Family Tree Maker software.
7. Asterisk(s) after a name indicate the number of known, but not plotted generation(s) of ancestors.
